ABSTRACT

In 1997 the North Carolina legislature passed the Safe Schools law, which sets forth definite responsibilities for the State Board of Education, local boards of education, and individual schools. In response to this mandate, suggestions that should help local boards and local education agencies in developing their local plans and in providing guidance to individual schools are presented in this document. Since much of the law's language is prescriptive in its requirements, much of this document comes directly from the statute. Clarifying statements are provided and examples are given in an attempt to facilitate the work that has to occur at the local level. This document emphasized that local school leadership must promote each school's "Safe School Plan" in conjunction with and as a part of the school's overall comprehensive school improvement plan. Each local education agency must carefully assess and define its needs and determine what resources are required to bring the school system into compliance. This self-study process was developed to assist the local board oversees development of the administrative unit's safe school plans. Each plan must address all of the legislated components outlined in this document. Nine appendices contain the protocol for preparing safe school plans, suggest plan format, a form to request assistance from a safety intervention team and other materials. (RJM)

Introduction

The 1997 Safe Schools legislation sets forth very definite responsibilities for the State Board of Education, local boards of education and individual schools. This document will assist local boards/LEAs in developing their local plans and providing guidance to individual schools. The legislation is very prescriptive in its requirements; therefore, much of this document comes directly from the statute. Clarifying statements are provided and examples or samples are given in an attempt to facilitate the work that has to occur at the local level.

It is important for local school leadership to promote that each school's "Safe School Plan" be done in conjunction with and as a part of the school's overall comprehensive school improvement plan. The Safe School Plan should not be an additional stand alone plan.

Legislation requires development and evaluation of individual school plans by June, 1998. Building administrators can qualify for a 1% salary increase for successful implementation of this plan. Salary increases are to be awarded by July, 1998. The decision to award this increase is made by the local board, and can be based on guidelines developed by the State Board (see p. 7).

Like every school, each local education agency must carefully assess and define its needs, and determine what resources are needed to address defined needs of the school system. This self-study process will prove invaluable as the local board oversees development of the local administrative unit's safe school plan. The plan must be developed during the 1997-98 school year. It must address all of the legislated components outlined in guideline number 1 on page 7 of this document. Individual school plans can serve as a resource in developing the LEA safe school plan. Just as schools' overall improvement plans are subject to revision, so is the safe schools part of their plan, especially following adoption of the LEA safe school plan.

SUMMARY OF SAFE SCHOOLS LEGISLATION

This legislation should be interpreted in relation to the 1995 school improvement legislation. Whereas it was previously encouraged that safe school components be included in a school's overall improvement plan, it is now required that they be. Eventual enactment of all portions of this legislation will mean that schools, LEAs and local boards will need to collectively insure that essential safe school components are incorporated in every school's annual school improvement plan. To facilitate understanding of the legislation, direct quotes of it are used wherever appropriate.

This new legislation serves to guide and shape this planning process via three specific provisions. First, safe school components that must be incorporated into each school's current improvement plan include:

- 1) "... plans, policies and procedures for dealing with disorderly and disruptive behavior", and
- 2) ". . . effective measures for assisting students who are at risk of . . . engaging in disruptive and disorderly behavior."

When a local board approves a school's overall improvement plan, it must insure that the above provisions are addressed.

Second, the local board will, before the end of the school year, have to decide on whether school administrators qualify for salary increases tied to safer schools. To facilitate this decision, the above components of safe school plans should be stated in the form of "... objectively measurable goals." The board can then decide that an administrator qualifies for the salary increase if it "... find(s) that the employee's school has met (these) objectively measurable goals...". The setting of these goals and evaluation of their accomplishment are responsibilities of the local education leadership and board of education.

Third, a school's modifications of its comprehensive school improvement plan for 1998-99 should be done in concert with the LEA safe schools plan that is required to be implemented in 1998-99. This LEA plan must include a number of legislated components (see the first guideline of the "Guidelines for Rewarding School Administrators" section of this document for a summary of these components). As part of this mandate, the local board and LEA administration must provide "direction to school improvement teams . . . to incorporate into their school improvement plans the appropriate components of the local (LEA) plan for maintaining safe and orderly schools." What is appropriate for a school to adopt from the LEA plan would be guided by needs that are identified by or for the school relative to safety and orderliness.

In sum, what this legislation requires of locals over the next year is:

- 1) Schools to be incorporating into their 1997-98 overall improvement plans, with local board approval, safe schools components as described in the second paragraph above.
- 2) LEAs to now be developing a system-wide plan that will guide revisions in school's improvement plans for 1998-99.
- 3) Schools to have school improvement plans for 1998-99 that incorporate LEA safe school components that are responsive to identified needs of each school.

GUIDELINES FOR LOCAL BOARDS' DEVELOPMENT OF PLANS TO MAINTAIN SAFE AND ORDERLY SCHOOLS

Schools should be safe, secure and orderly. If students are to aim for academic excellence, it is imperative that there is a climate of respect in every school and that every school is free of disruption, drugs, violence, and weapons. All schools must have plans, policies, and procedures for dealing with disorderly and disruptive behavior. All schools and school units must have effective measures for assisting students who are at risk of academic failure or of engaging in disruptive and disorderly behavior.

State Board of Education Responsibilities

- (1) Adopt guidelines for development of local safe school plans.
- (2) Provide, in cooperation with the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina, ongoing technical assistance to local school administrative units in the development, implementation and evaluation of their local safe school plans.
- (3) May levy sanctions when any administrator or employee of a local administrative unit delays or refuses to prepare and implement a local safe school plan: e.g. withhold salary or revoke the certificate of the superintendent for failure to fulfill the superintendent's duties relative to a local safe school plan.

LOCAL SAFE SCHOOL PLAN

The local board of education shall develop a local administrative unit safe school plan that ensures that every school in the unit is safe, secure, and orderly; has a climate of respect; and promotes appropriate personal conduct for all students and school personnel. The local board's plan will serve as the guide for each individual school's development of its plan, and should be completed by March 31, 1998, and implemented in the 1998-99 school year.

I. PRELIMINARY STEPS

- A. Establish a committee to develop or review the plan. The committee shall include parents, representatives of the school community and relevant others.

- (3) meet the current needs of each school in the local school administrative unit;
- (4) address the components required in the new statute; or

DPI GUIDELINES FOR SAFE SCHOOLS PLANS Definition and Standards for Safe Schools

The North Carolina Department of Public Instruction's Instructional Support/Safe Schools Team offers the following framework for the planning of safe schools. A safe school is both a condition and an outcome of an effective school. Acquiring an orderly, disciplined and safe school is dependent on a comprehensive consideration of the total environment and climate of the school--physical, social, academic, and school-community.

Definition of Safe Schools

A safe school is one:

- (1) Where identified or specified problems or incidents of disruption, crime and violence are progressively decreased to zero;
- (2) Where any increase in reported incidents can be related to either (a) improved detection and reporting of specified acts, and/or (b) consequent efforts to improve strategies to prevent or reduce such acts;
- (3) Which is perceived to be orderly, disciplined and safe by a clear majority (e.g. at least 75 %) of major stakeholders (i.e., students, educators, parents), and where a clear majority of occupants feels safe and secure at any time, while the school strives for 100 percent on these dimensions;
- (4) Where absences; inadequate academic performance; or dropouts, withdrawals or transfers due to feeling afraid in school is progressively decreased to zero; and
- (5) Where those factors known or thought to contribute to these outcomes are progressively developed and nurtured.
